

Echoes of a Life

A Collection of Forty Poems

ASHOK KUMAR SARANGI

Copyright © 2026, Ashok Kumar Sarangi
All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopy, recording or any information storage and retrieval system now known or to be invented, without permission in writing from the publisher, except by a reviewer who wishes to quote brief passages in connection with a review written for inclusion in a magazine, newspaper or broadcast.

Published in India by Prowess Publishing, GJ Complex, Thadikara Swamy Koil St, Alandur, Chennai, Tamil Nadu 600016

ISBN: 978-1-5457-6687-3 eISBN: 978-1-5457-6688-0

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication

Table of Contents

1. The Octogenarian
2. The Last Consolation
3. Rich in Spirituality
4. My Beloved Guide
5. The Transition
6. Sailing Through Turbulence
7. Lifestyle Cradles
8. A Seventeen-Year-Old's Conception
9. The Colour Fades, The Season Stays
10. Infatuation's Nightfall
11. The Empty Return
12. A Dozen Other Applicants
13. When You Look Back
14. Illusion of Love
15. The Same Wonderful Woman
16. Half Dead
17. The Blast Furnace
18. Instincts
19. Dopamine Reigns
20. The Art of Pretending
21. Innocent Facilitator
22. The Enemy Within
23. The Loneliest Sinner
24. The Weight of Ethics
25. The Untethered Mind
26. The Greatest Magician

27. The Object Has Not Changed
28. Decades Past
29. The Evolution of Craving
30. The Greatest Gift
31. Time Showcases Its Magic
32. Against All Odds
33. To the Corridor of Success
34. I Worked for the Organisation
35. Empty Hands, Full Heart
36. Against the Wind
37. The Creator of Diverse Worlds
38. Argon
39. A Stranger from the Sky
40. As Per His Plan

1. The Octogenarian

“To care for those who once cared for us is one of the highest honours.”

My first memory depicts her as a lively soul — toward whom I was tenderly inclined.
She made me laugh,
dressed me up,
played with me,
cracked jokes
when I fell into pensive moods.
Those were our sweet days of friendship.

Slowly, I grew convinced she stood behind my schooling — and I began to fear her coercive power, her iron determination,
her policy of instant correction.

She taught me moral science day in, day out.
Her disciplined routine was cast upon me like a mould.
Laxity, misbehaviour, disregard — lived in a zero-tolerance zone.
She could run behind me for miles to put me back inside the fold.

It is my greatest fortune now to serve this octogenarian, glorious lady, as my child — she, who cannot stand, or move, or sit, or even utter a word.

Not all are so fortunate as me.

To nourish my ailing mother in my own arms
may be the greatest fortune life will ever grant.

Carrying her frail frame against my chest,
I look deeply into her sunken eyes, trying to understand her old-age pain — but fail, for I cannot yet reach her age.

She soothed the pain of all of us.
Yet our combined efforts cannot alleviate hers.

Nothing in this universe
can repay a fraction of my debt to her.

Spending every possible moment with her is consolation, and consolation only.

2. The Last Consolation

“Some debts are not meant to be repaid — only honoured.”

Nothing in this universe
can repay what parents silently give — not success,
not wealth,
not tears.

At best,
we spend the rest of our lives trying to honour
what can never truly be repaid.

You've Just Finished your Free Sample

Enjoyed the preview?

Buy: <https://store.prowesspub.com>